MELLON RECOMMENDS BIG TAX CUT

KEY SYSTEM CHARGED WITH PADDING ACCOUNTS

$1,000,000 Is Padding Says Gray

Oakland Attorney Makes Charge At Hearing Before State R. R. Commission

EARNINGS ARE INSUFFICIENT

Hearing Held on Petition For Increase in Fares of Key System

OAKLAND, Oct. 19.—An accusation was advanced by City Attorney Leon Gray of Oakland, at the hearing before the state railroad commission today that the Key System Transit company has "padded" the valuation of its properties by $1,000,000 in the items of "development costs" alone in making the application for an increase of rates.

The charges were brought out when Gray was cross-examining Richard Sachse, the company engineer. Sachse testified that the company claimed a valuation of $30,000,000 for its ferry and interurban system and he was examined on each item.

Sachse's reply to a question as to what the $1,900,000 for developments costs represented, caused Gray to subject him to a barrage of technical questions. Eventually he declared that the "development cost" represented expenditures which the company has made out of "its own money" but which Sachse asserted should have been paid for out of "earnings."

Sachse testified that the earnings were insufficient to meet these costs and they were met out of other funds, while the amount of the expenditures were then placed in the valuation.

The attack on the petition for increased rates is of great interest to Richmond, as officials of that city are now endeavoring to obtain lower rates instead of higher ones. City Attorney D. J. Hall of Richmond wants a 12-cent fare from Oakland to Point Richmond, asserting that a person can ride from San Leandro city line to the Contra Costa county line for six cents, while the distance from Oakland to Point Richmond is only half the distance from San Leandro to El Cerrito.

Poppies to be Planted Along Cutting Blvd.

Cutting Boulevard will present one of the most pleasing sights of any street or highway in this section of the state if it was indicated last night at the meeting of the City Council when a discussion was held on the planting of poppy seeds there.

The parkings in the street were plowed up some time ago and poppy seeds are to be planted there some time this month.

PERCENTAGE OF OPERATION COST AT WHARF HIGH

Figures Show That Operation of Wharf Among Highest in State

INSTALLMENT 5

Some facts taken from the annual report just issued by the State controller relating to the wharves and docks of municipalities of the state are interesting. The data given is for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924.

In Los Angeles, there was collected from its wharves $1,809,828.24, and the administration expenses were $147,656.78.

In Oakland, $213,955.49 was collected and the administration expenses were $23,867.23.

In San Diego, $53,035.75 was received from its wharves and docks, and the administration expenses were $7,335.25.

At Sacramento the receipts from its wharves were $25,406.73, and the administration expenses were $2,520.

Stockton collected $29,741.07 from its wharves. The state controller's report has no charge for administration expense.

Richmond collected $26,332.28 and the administration expenses were $3,617.80.

In the above items the amounts expended for maintenance and operation expenses are not included.

It will be seen that in most municipal wharves of the state the administration expenses run about 10 per cent of the amount taken in as receipts, with the exception of Richmond, where they run over 32 per cent.

Many have been asking the question, why are the administration expenses so much higher in Richmond than in other cities.

The answer seems to be that the cream of the profit at the wharf is apparently taken by the Richmond Terminal Corporation.

This corporation, at the present time holds no lease, but it seems to have just as iron clad a grip on the municipal wharf and wharf shed, as if it was the sole owner of the property.

What the stevedoring companies receive for moving goods and what their percentage of profit is, will be taken up in a future article.

(MORE TOMORROW).

OAKLAND, Oct. 19.—Officials of the Eastbay Municipal Utility District journey to Sacramento tonight for the re-opening of the session before the State and federal water commissioners at that city tomorrow in the struggle for a permit to take the waters of the Mokelumne river for the use of Eastbay cities.

The officials of the district feel that their position is strong as this is a well defined plan and is backed by the water needs of half a million persons. It is generally understood that the permit will be granted, but it is a question as to how many limitations and handicaps the permit will carry.

Mayor and City Clerk Ordered to Sign Contract For Construction

With a unanimous vote the City Council last night directed Mayor W. W. Scott and City Clerk A. S. Paris to sign a contract with the Tibbets Pacific Company for the construction of an open wharf on the inner harbor. Construction on the wharf which according to the bid is to cost $64,779.00 is to start at once.

With the signing of this contract the road is clear for the development of the inner harbor which has been urged by the Richmond Chamber of Commerce for some time and which has been under serious consideration of the City Council for many years.

Bonds for this improvement were voted at a bond election in 1920 but it has only been within the last year that the actual construction and need of the wharf has been felt necessary by the city council.

Work is to start at once on the new wharf which is to be 500 feet

Scorpion Club Inhabits Old Barn, Charged

Richmond has a Scorpion Club. Never heard of it? Well, it's a club of youngsters who find every conceivable means, and some that are not to just naturally raise the dickens. They have been made famous through their appearance in the comic strips.

According to a report made to the City Council last night by Councilman George F. Black the barn at Fourth and Ripley which has been under discussion by the council for some time is the official headquarters for the club.

Residents of the district who have requested the council to order the barn moved charge that it is holding up the development of that section.

The city council states that it is impossible to take any definite action at the present time because the building has not depreciated to the extent of forty per cent since its construction.

City Manager James McVittie was appointed to look into the matter and report at the next council meeting.

GARAGE PERMIT IS GRANTED BY CITY COUNCIL

Upon the presentation of plans recommended by the city planning commission and endorsed by the city council, at its meeting last Tuesday night, Ward McKenney was last night granted a permit to construct a garage on Fourteenth street between Macdonald and Bissell avenues. Objection had been raised to the garage by the owner of an apartment house next door, Mrs. Mary Dorstewitz, that the garage would depreciate the value of her property. The planning commission recommended that the garage be set back five feet and that the side wall toward the apartment house and the front be of a construction that would harmonize with the rest of the building in the section.

The plans submitted to the council indicated that this request has been complied with and the request for the permit was granted. Tarr N. Caffee represented McKenney at the meeting last night.

A LEAGUE INCIDENT

John Steele says British enthusiasm on behalf of the League of Nations has suffered a bit of a chill. The other day the Turks refused to accept the arbitrament of the council of the league. Then the Swedish delegate on the Mosul inquiry committee would not play with the British and French and his objection sent the question to The Hague court, where it is likely to be some time despite the fact that an early adjustment is highly desirable. The British and French having agreed to work out a settlement of the Syrian and Iraq questions in harmony, this unexpected obstruction is a sharp disappointment.

We can sympathize and meditate. Sweden has no interest and no responsibility in Syria or Mesopotamia, but a Swedish delegate to the league has to do his own judging, else why should he waste his time at Geneva? He rightly scorns to be a mere rubber stamp for the British and French members. On the other hand, his action, is from the viewpoint of British and French imperial responsibilities, as intolerable impertinence.

We should feel the same way in their shoes and meanwhile we ought to congratulate ourselves that we are not in their shoes. The incident well illustrates the embarrassment of participation in the league. We are invited to enter it on the theory that it is a means for working out world peace by way of just decisions. As a matter of fact, it is a complex of European politics in which we should find ourselves hopelessly enmeshed in a perpetual melee of interests and ambitions with which the American people have only the remotest concern, if any. We don't want a Swedish delegate or a Roumanian or any delegate from a country which has no interest or responsibility mixing in a situation in which we are vitally interested. We want to be free to manage our own foreign relations. It is more than likely that when the Swedish delegate threw the switch and ran the British-French plans into the court he increased the possibility of war in that region. The tactics within the league are certain to do this off and on and the effort to sell that institution to us as a patent peacemaker we trust will be given up by British political missionaries. Our pacifists and our internationalists will keep on with their exhortation but they are getting nowhere with American public opinion.—Chicago Tribune.

KNOW WHEN YOU'RE LICKED

A prominent manufacturer said recently that many people are held back in life because they will not forget defeat. His point was strikingly made to show that too often people spend too much time bemoaning temporary losses.

There are too many "post mortem" examinations held over the remains of a bright idea that failed. The same time and effort spent in brooding over a past transaction or incidental defeat could be employed more profitably in accomplishing the next task; for, in the lives of all of us, that next task will surely come.

Of course Uncle Sam would be welcomed into the League of Nations, either by the front door or back door. They would even, as an inducement, agree to elect him paymaster of the whole shebang.

Our Mr. Ford has not abandoned the idea of milk from contented chemicals.—Detroit News.

SCHOOL DAYS

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Copyright 1925 by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The Most Important Trimming Medium of the Season is Leather.

A LONG narrow strip of leather forms a new "scarf" that is considered very smart. It is tied around the neck once, and the ends are left hanging. Sometimes there is a belt to match.

Narrow leather belts decorate some of the new frocks—sometimes three of them being used on one frock—one at the "normal waistline," one a few inches below and another a few inches below the second. The sketch shows a frock of this sort with one black belt in the middle and one at either side of deep blue de rose. Three little straps of velvet are used to decorate the neck.

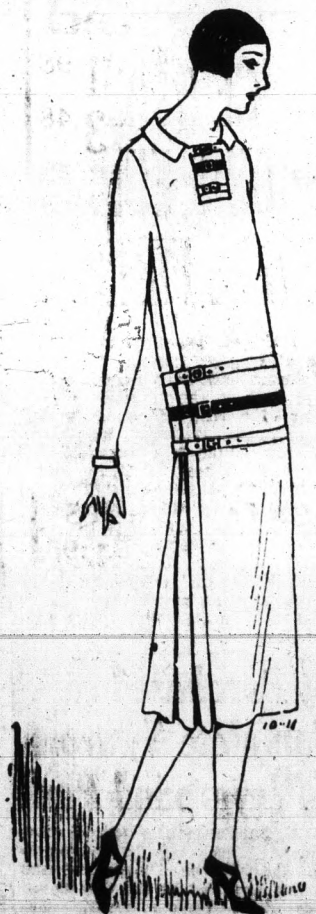

Much leather and imitation leather are used in the making of collar and cuffs sets. Silver and gold leather made into neat cuffs and collar sets have been in the shops for several months and are very smart when worn with a simple black or navy blue frock. Usually these collars and cuffs are edged with a narrow grosgrain ribbon.

Leather is used in trim straps and pipings to decorate all sorts of sports clothes. This has been done before. Rather new is the use of leather to make all sorts of interesting floral and other designs to decorate afternoon and evening frocks. A black velvet frock—among the recent imports—showed a decoration placed at the left hip which consisted of two large roses of pink and blue leather with silver leaves. Black coats and frocks from Paris show interesting decoration consisting of cut-outs of silver or gold leather with each piece outlined with gold or silver beads.

On some of the newest sports suits of tweed or kasha, leather dyed to match the material is used to form various sorts of applique decorations.

The milliners have been especially clever in the use of leather. Suzanne Talbot is most successful in disguising the true nature of the leather in some of her decorations. She makes lovely little tulle hats which she trims with leather flowers. Some of these tulle hats show a quantity of small silver or gold leather cut-outs. Agnes, we are told, makes charming toques which are covered all over with small triangles of gold or silver leather.

Leather straps trim the waist and neck of this frock of bois-de-rose kasha. The center strap in each group is of black, while at each side it is of bois de rose in a deeper shade.

THE GOOD DANCER

A PROFESSIONAL dancer said the other day that the really good dancer danced not only with his feet—but with the rest of his body and his mind as well. The really good dancer has dancing eyes, sparkling eyes, twinkling finger tips, so full is he of the love of the dance he is doing.

So if you want to be a really good dancer—remember: You must teach your mind as well as your toes.

SPEAKING OF THE NEW FASHIONS

Though the new clothes are spoken of as being wider of skirt and usually flared about the hem—still it is true that among the new frocks there are some that are narrower than any that have gone before. A new evening frock is made so narrow that the wearer finds it impossible to go upstairs at all.

UMBRELLAS AND HANDBAGS

Umbrellas and handbags are sold in matching sets. The umbrella, for instance, is brown. The handle is marked with an initial in gull. The handbag then would be brown and beige, the flap marked with a similar initial. Or the umbrella is green and blue. Then the handbag is in green and blue leather, and the initial matches on umbrella and bag.

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

By DOROTHY A. F. MARCELL

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
"THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED" with Irene Rich is a pictureization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

E. J. Bledsoe, politician, calls on John Mannering, district attorney, and reveals that the presence of Mrs. Mannering in a raid on a notorious inn was the result of a plot to bring about Jerome Wallace's election to the office. Young Bob Mannering is accused of causing a woman's death in a motor car smash and his mother was advised this was the best way to bring about his release, as Mannering, as district attorney, insisted upon prosecuting his son.

CHAPTER X—Continued

"See her—see her and explain. She'll forgive you, don't worry about that," said Bledsoe with all the confidence of a man whose rest has been unbroken.

"But, Bledsoe, I—I left her. I don't know where she is!" groaned John repentantly.

"I do," said Bledsoe, producing the telegram from his daughter. "See here, Diane says she's there. That must mean Meadville."

"Meadville?"

"You never heard of it, Mannering. It's a little village near my country place. My car is outside. Come on, let's go."

CHAPTER XIV

All that day Eileen lay stretched across the bed in her little room at the hotel utterly motionless. Sleeping the sleep of complete exhaustion, she might almost have been dead. For her wearied body Nature had decreed an armistice; for her tired soul had granted a cessation of grief in gentle slumber.

Yet to Diane Bledsoe, at her father's her's lodge in the forest, came no such peace. While her telegram to her father had allayed in a measure that excess of terror which, seemingly inspired by the sight of Eileen at the little hotel, had sent the girl galloping madly homeward as if pursued by the devil himself, she seemed obsessed by fears which found expression in great nervousness.

"But, Bledsoe, I—I left her. I don't know where she is!"

For a time after the message had gone she stationed herself at a front window of the lodge and gazed back over the wooded hills through which she had just ridden so madly as if expecting a pursuer to appear at any moment. It was a beautiful view she gazed upon, in its peace and restfulness the last place from which harm might emerge. Before her eyes an undulating sea of green stretched away for miles to where in the hazy distance it was bounded by the silvery thread of the river.

A remarkable site was this that Bledsoe had chosen for his summer home. All about it a primeval forest, within whose majestic aisles the ax of man had never sounded, yet which echoed to the distant whistles of locomotives and the low moan of far away factory sirens, while sometimes overhead an aeroplane vied with the eagle's flight. A few hours' ride and all the activities of civilization pulsed about one, but here amidst these giants of the ages the centuries seemed turned back, and they in philosophical calm to scorn the march of progress.

It was Bledsoe's great wealth which had made this thing possible. Out of some complicated business transaction he had emerged the owner of this vast tract as simply as if he, a marauder baron, had laid subject to his sword a choice bit of a neighboring kingdom. Now, like some lord of the middle ages, he could gaze forth at his forest domain as far as the eye could see.

Bledsoe seemed to love this forest, yet it is doubtful if he had ever penetrated its depths more than a few steps from the roadside. In all the years that he had owned it. This, however, was not true of Diane. Like a drey of these hills, she had run wild in their shadowed recesses since infancy. Now, disturbed as she was by some inward fear, they seemed to call to her.

Making her way downstairs she moved off into the quiet woodland with the assurance of familiarity. A few steps and all semblance of a path had disappeared. But on she went, circling a mass of underbrush here or some monstrous giant which lay prone there. Now there lay before her a bed of pine needles as soft as any carpet, then she must climb a rotten log, which, dry as punk, shivered off a splinter beneath her light tread.

Careless! Diane moved away quite heedless that her foot had not stepped upon the lighted end of her cigarette or that her action had merely shifted it into the cup of a leaf as dry as tinder. Hardly had she gone twenty yards before a thread of smoke lifted itself perhaps an inch from the ground, as night the coil of a tiny serpent.

Crackle! Pop! Zoom! It is a flaming torch, a torch to spread destruction far and near. Bledsoe's forest is afire!

Such a disaster was farthestmost from Bledsoe's thoughts as he sped towards his lodge with John Mannering at his side. In fact, he was at peace with the world and himself, particularly himself. Had he not exorcised himself with promptness and honor from a most disagreeable situation in respect to the election? Having acted so righteously he was inclined to take a calm view of life. Although he had urged John to proceed with him to Meadville with the utmost dispatch, no sooner had they started than, from John's point of view, he grew most exasperatingly dilatory. He had to stop at his office and leave instructions. His chauffeur had better go and get gas. There was a tire that should be changed. Then it was almost lunch time, they had better have lunch. Inwardly John fretted and fumed at the imp of procrastination which had seized the man. Alone and with his own car he would have been well on the way. But uplifted by hope, where all had been hopeless, he had borne the delay stoically.

At last they were off. Filled with impatience, John fretted under their slow progress through the congested traffic. He was on pins and needles as they sped more swiftly through the environs of the city. Finally out on the highway as the speedometer began to climb, he sank back in his corner with a sigh of relief and left Bledsoe complacently enjoying his cigar in the other.

On, on they went through the long hours of the afternoon. It was a silent ride. And now John found himself the prey of a thousand fears and regrets. Would Eileen forgive him? Once reached she must be made to understand. In his repentance he was ready to go to any lengths to restore himself in her graces. But he had accused her of dreadful things—in his anger said terrible things. How terrible he was not quite sure. She must be made to understand the misapprehension under which he had labored. Ah, but Eileen was proud! Would she forgive him? There was the rub.

On, on they went against a rising wind which did not fall with the setting of the sun. Twilight came and darkness. As they topped the hill John thought he perceived a red glow in the sky.

"There's a town ahead or a big fire," he told Bledsoe.

"Can't be," said the other with all the assurance of exact knowledge.

On, on they went, while the miles sped by. Once more they topped the hill.

"Look!" cried Bledsoe, sitting up and staring ahead with startled eyes. "It is a fire, as I live, an immense one! But what can it be?"

A fierce gust of wind swept down on the car and John sniffed the air.

"It's a forest fire!" he cried. "Don't you smell it?"

Rod and Gun Club Enjoys Beautiful Hallowe'en Party

The Rod and Gun club was the scene of a most attractive Hallowe'en party Saturday evening, given by James McChish, 420 Fifth street.

The evening was spent in dancing with peppy music furnished by the Red Cap Orchestra from Oakland.

At the foot of the walk was a huge, ferocious looking pumpkin, lighting the way to the club rooms. The hall was beautifully decorated in black and orange streamers with queer faced pumpkins hanging from the walls.

About 11:30 a delicious Hallowe'en supper was served in the dining room adjoining the hall. The tables were attractively decorated in black and yellow with pumpkins and witches scattered about. The supper was served by the light of the fireplace and a few orange candles which adorned the tables.

This carried out the Hallowe'en idea, making everything a success.

SOMETHING NEW IN THE PICTURE AT CALIFORNIA

All those who persist in exploiting in the old bromide, "there is nothing new under the sun" and especially not in motion pictures, will find a delightful surprise in "The Marriage Circle," which opened yesterday at the California theatre.

The picture is remarkable in its simplicity and the adherence to it clings to everyday happenings. Moreover, the cast can truly be termed an all-star one, for the five principal characters are none other than Monte Blue, Florence Vidor, Creighton Hale, Marie Prevost and Adolphe Menjou, while Harry Myers and Dale Fuller plays roles of lesser importance and the cleverness that always characterizes their performances.

Ernst Lubitsch produced the picture for Warner Brothers.

Instead of the usual over-developed, unconvincing story, here is a page from life itself, with all the satire, subtle humor and appeal of a sparkling continental story. It is a story of a married flirt whose greatest delight lies in enticing other women's husbands.

The complications that result are exceedingly humorous and never at any time depart from the plausible, which in itself would put the picture in the class of pictures destined to live. Aside from that, there is the excellent directing of Lubitsch, who in this picture outdoes even his own former record, the inspired acting of the cast and the smoothness which characterized the whole performance, making it spin merrily along without a single jarring note.

Other features include "All Abroad" based on "The Married Life of Helen and Warren," by Mabel Herbert Urner; "Hodge Podge"; "Topics of the Day"; Larry Canelo, at the organ.

Shinola Shines

Have New Ritual

The ritual that will be presented by the Shinola Shines of the Richmond lodge of Elks at the installation ceremonies of various Elks lodges has been completed by A. C. Lang, and it is reported to be a "knockout." Lang wrote the ritual on initiation that was put on by the Shines last year, taking it from the regular initiation rituals. The new offering will not be presented until the first of next year.

Entertainment and balloting on candidates will take place at the meeting of the local lodge this evening. Frank A. Silva is in charge of the entertainment. Frank Gordon and Dr. A. B. Hinkley will be presented with their trophies won in the recent golf tournament.

HORSES, MULES, DOGS AND OTHER ANIMALS WILL WEAR GAS MASKS IF U. S. EVER GOES TO WAR AGAIN

According to an announcement made recently at the headquarters of the Second-Corps Area, Governors Island, New York, all animals used in wartime will be equipped with gas masks if the United States ever engaged in another war in which poison gas is employed. Carrier pigeons will not be equipped with masks while in flight but will be protected by a special gas cover completely surrounding their transport cages. The photograph shows Sergeant Mitchell Gorman in his new gas-proof suit (protected against mustard gas) astride a horse equipped with gas mask.

Marion Davies Starred in Film At the Richmond

Every now and then comes along a motion picture that contains so much of ability and beauty and lavish expenditure that every one that pretends to know anything at all about the films must see it as a matter of duty, if nothing else. Even more seldom comes a film combining all these qualities, which possesses also the rare attributes of beauty and charm and romantic flavor that make it the pleasurable necessity of every one to see it. Such a picture is Cosmopolitan's "Janice Meredith," starring Marion Davies, which came to the Richmond theatre yesterday for two days.

It is one of those things that every one must see for the sheer delight of it, and that every one also must see to know anything at all about achievement in motion picture making. Miss Davies outshines even herself in this film.

"Janice Meredith" was adapted from Paul Leicester Ford's novel by Lillie Hayward. It was directed by E. Mason Hopper. The settings were by Joseph Urban. It is a Metro-Goldwyn release.

"Topics of the Day" will also be screened on the same program. Coming Wednesday and Thursday the screen's greatest drama "Abraham Lincoln."

Council Orders Contract Made For New Wharf

In length and supported by crescent piling. A representative of the Tibbitts Pacific Company informed the council last Tuesday night that immediately the contract is signed work be started. A pile driver will be on the job within a few days sinking test piles. When this work is completed it will be possible to determine the saving or additional cost if any for the crescent piling. If more than was estimated in the original plans is needed as all additional cost will be necessary. It is felt however that the additional cost if any will be offset by the fact that only eight trestle bents will be needed instead of ten as was at first thought. The bids submitted to the council two weeks ago contained clauses for these alternatives.

Francis Betts Smith prepared the plans for the new wharf and will be the engineer in charge of construction.

Arrangements have been made with the Santa Fe Railway company to supply the wharf with rail connections.

City Attorney D. J. Hall at a recent meeting of the council stated that negotiations were being completed for the right of way which is needed by the city for access to and from the wharf.

Yellow Cab Introduces the "Mile Merchant"

Responsible, progressive cab operators of America today call themselves "Mile Merchants."

The YELLOW CAB CO. of this city likes the term. It summarizes in two words most of the things we are constantly striving for.

YELLOW CAB miles are branded merchandise. Only as long as the commodity we sell is of superior value can we hope to have your continued patronage.

Our cabs are so many stores on wheels. Naturally you prefer to do your buying in a safe, clean, comfortable place.

Every one of our drivers is a salesman of miles. It is not enough that he know how to pilot an automobile skillfully. He must be able to deliver your purchase so that you will come back again and again. Our success is built on "repeat orders."

There is just as much difference between a "Mile Merchant" and the ordinary cab owner as there is between the well established business institution of this city and curbside hawkers.

The one big difference between YELLOW CAB miles and just ordinary cab miles is Service and Financial Responsibility. The "Mile Merchant" recognizes and lives up to his obligations.

So we introduce a new term which we believe will find a permanent place in the lexicon of business.

We are proud to be known as "Mile Merchants."
